Dr. von Hagens' groundbreaking science of Plastination, the polymer preservation of anatomical specimens, allows human bodies to be presented in dramatic, aesthetic displays.

british music experience

This unique permanent exhibition is dedicated to the history of popular music in Britain.

Using state of the art effects it will show how rock, pop and dance were formed and have influenced the last sixty years of British culture. As well as celebrating the era defining sounds created in this country, we also pay homage to international artists who have found their inspiration or audience within the UK.

It not only entertains and stimulates but educates visitors about the importance and relevance of Britain's most creative industry; showing how popular music has influenced key areas of our lives like politics, fashion and art. It also looks to the future, providing a snapshot of where British music and its future generation of fans and musicians are heading.

Opens March 2009 at The O_2 bubble.
